Product Description

The Ingersoll RA71 20B staple is a high-quality replacement keep designed specifically for outward opening doors. This accessory allows you to securely install the popular Ingersoll SC71 and SC73 rim locks on doors that open outwards, providing a reliable locking point on the door frame.

Manufactured to Ingersoll's high standards, this staple ensures your lock functions correctly and maintains its security integrity. It is available in multiple finishes, including Polished Brass and Satin Chrome, allowing you to match your existing door hardware. Please choose your preferred finish from the options below.

With a compact width of 44mm and a lightweight yet sturdy 60g construction, it is a direct fit for compatible Ingersoll locks, making it an essential accessory for non-standard door installations.

Brand Profile

Ingersoll

Ingersoll is a historic British high-security lock brand, best known for its distinctive rim nightlatches and the long-running SC71—a “signature” product whose chunky look and unique key profile are basically part of the brand’s identity. Ingersoll Locks Limited states it was founded in 1949 and has focused on security-led lock design ever since.

A key part of the origin story centers on inventor Jack W. Taylor, who (according to a detailed brand history) conceived the idea for a ten-lever cylinder in 1944, and the Ingersoll range grew from that high-security cylinder concept.

In today’s market, “Ingersoll” is still used as shorthand for serious, mechanical, front-door security—the kind of lock people pick when they want something robust, familiar to locksmiths, and not dependent on batteries, apps, or vibes.

Ownership-wise, the Ingersoll trademark/manufacturer is described as being owned by the ASSA ABLOY Group (noting this is stated by a specialist distributor/reseller who explicitly separates themselves from the trademark owner).
